

IDLE WORKMEN ON DECREASE

Large Forces Are at Work in the Mills and Factories of the Country.

OUTPUT IS NOW BEING AUGMENTED

Manufacturing Departments Are Now Being Kept Busy
Supplying the Demands For the Consumers' Orders.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Dun's weekly review of Chicago trade says:

"Business conditions exhibit continued gathering of strength, the period of resumption now being clearly distinct in the industrial branches. The main factors encourage confidence in the outlook. The financial situation shows ease and mercantile defaults are small.

"Weather conditions have been a stimulant to the consumption of seasonal commodities, resulting in increased retail merchandising. Buying of staple goods for the interior maintained gratifying volume, numerous supplementary orders being a feature. Transactions showed well throughout the leading jobbing divisions, especially in dry goods, men's furnishings, women's apparel, millinery and footwear. Local dealers purchased more freely. This trade for some time past has been backward, but now presents renewed activity and a better disposition to increase stocks.

More Mills Are Started.

"Manufacturing has steadily gained, and much less idle machinery and larger working forces are seen as contrasted with a month ago. New building enterprises are in further evidence, assuring a busy future and the use of enormous quantities of material. Lumber receipts, 32,542,000 feet.

compare with 27,777,000 feet for the same week last year. General demand for yard stocks gained on both city and country needs, much being for furniture and car shops. Other needs for building purposes are in good request, causing firm values, while brick and stone bring higher prices than ruled a year ago.

Progress in Manufacture.

"Manufacturing departments have made progress in production, especially in woodwork, agricultural machinery and pig iron. General machinery, hardware and tools are working into extended output, and new requirements provide electric, plumbing and shoe factories are engaged practically for the coming seven months. In iron and steel developments are more satisfactory. Furnace product is in stronger position, current commitments reaching large tonnage, and producers obtained advanced price for delivery three months hence. Specifications were plentiful for structural forms, and a good demand appeared for plates, bars and wire product.

"Failures reported in the Chicago district number twenty-one, against twenty-seven last week and twenty-six a year ago."

Leprosy in Japan.

Japan has 200,000 registered cases of leprosy. There is no pity or compassion for the lepers. Man or woman, young or old, they are turned adrift on the highways, homeless wanderers, dependent for subsistence upon casual doles of food thrown to them from afar.

The postoffice at Mount Worth has been robbed of cash and stamps amounting to $70.00 by burglars who blew open the safe.

THREE MEN DIED BY AN EXPLOSION

Fort Banks the Scene of a Bad Accident This Morning—Five Injured.

[Special by Scripps-Mellie.]
Winthrop, Mass., Oct. 15.—Three men were killed and five injured this morning by the bursting of a gun during target practice at Fort Banks.

NOMINEE FOR GOVERNOR.

GEORGE W. PECK, DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE FOR GOVERNOR

The above cut is an excellent reproduction of the features of ex-Governor George W. Peck of Milwaukee, who again aspires for gubernatorial honors. Governor Peck was elected governor of Wisconsin for the first time in 1890 when he defeated Governor Hoar for re-election by a plurality of 28,520. His net majority was 11,627. This was the year the state issues were merged in the Bennett school law and the little log schoolhouse with the American flag above it was the slogan and banner of the republicans. In 1892 Peck was re-elected governor over John C. Spooner, the republican nominee, by a plurality of 7,007. This was the campaign that Colonel Spooner made against his wishes because his party wished him to and the one in which present Governor La Follette refused to aid because of his legal practice. In 1892 Peck was defeated by Upham, the republican nominee, Upham's plurality being 58,366. Since then ex-Governor Peck has been a private citizen except for a short time when he was a member of the university board of regents. He was a member at large and was removed to make room for Judge Peckless of Milwaukee who had to be appointed to this board of regents to the fact he had donated a thousand dollars for the judicial campaign fund of Milwaukee which elected the Milwaukee Daily News against the governor and has made it his interest since ever since. Mr. Peck is a pleasing, jovial man. He is well-known to Janesville men; is a member of the famous Caravan hunting club of Lake Koshongong of which so many Janesville and Rock county hunters belong. Mr. Peck is a ready speaker, an excellent writer, and a journalist of considerable note. During the free silver craze of '96 and 1900 he was a leader of the state democracy, favoring the election of William Jennings Bryan. Governor Peck is a consistent democrat and will doubtless poll the solid vote of that party.

FOUL ATTEMPT TO MURDER WORKMEN

REFORMERS LOSE DIVOCE FIGHT

MAJORITY LOST UNDER RULES

Divided Votes Are Counted in the Negative, Thus Changing the Complexion of the Decision—Contest Will Be Definitely Abandoned.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 15.—Just before the battle against the divorce bill was lost the house of deputies of the Protestant Episcopal church fell on its knees and prayed for Divine guidance in the decision it was about to make. It was the constantly repeated cry for the rights of the innocent that defeated the proposed canon denying marriage to any person having a wife or husband living.

Three years ago it was carried by the clerical deputies and defeated by the lay deputies. Friday it was voted down in both orders, voting by dioceses.

This means that the Protestant Episcopal church refuses to declare the marriage tie indissoluble and that its ministers may continue to marry the innocent parties to divorces granted on the ground of adultery.

Will Abandon Struggle.
As Francis Lynde Stetson said, the struggle to prevent the remarriage of divorcees will be definitely abandoned.

The final vote was taken by dioceses and orders, and where a body was evenly divided it was counted in the negative. The result was:

Clerical—For the amendment, 20; against, 21; divided, 10.
Lay—For, 25; against, 24; divided, 6.

It is estimated that a majority of individuals was for the measure, which by the rules was declared lost.

Middle West for Reform.
Practically the entire strength of the middle Western states declared for the reform. The Pacific coast contingent and a majority of the representation from the South was against it. New York opposed and Pennsylvania favored. New England, Vermont, New Hampshire, western Massachusetts, the lay deputies from Rhode Island, and the clerical from Maine were for. Connecticut and eastern Massachusetts were against. Practically the whole strength of the high church was behind the amendment.

A resolution was adopted appointing a committee comprising two bishops, two clerical and two lay deputies to petition the state legislatures in the interest of reforming the divorce laws. This is subject to concurrence by the house of bishops.

The committee on striking the word "Protestant" from the name of the church reported, advising the expediency of the change at this time. The matter will be discussed later.

The Devil Grows Clumsy.
A Maiden woman whose sprained knee was made well by faith alone, two days after she fell from her bicycle, explains the accident: "Satan had a special spite against my bicycle, because it was dedicated to God before I ever mounted it." Yet the bicycle did not suffer. The devil is growing clumsy.—Boston Advertiser.

LABOR LEADERS BRING CHARGES

Reform Element in Illinois Declares Their Opponents Are Traitors.

ACTION IS ON EIGHT-HOUR LAW

Congressional Candidates Will Be Asked To Give Their Views on the Matter Now Being Seriously Discussed.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 15.—The closing hours of the State Federation of Labor convention Friday night were taken up by "reformers" in venting their spleen because of their defeat in the election of officers. Charges were made on the floor that certain delegates were traitors because they refused to vote for the "reform" candidates, but instead joined hands with the faction headed by M. B. Madden of Chicago, who was elected delegate to the American Federation of Labor convention at San Francisco next month.

The Chicago building trades unions were in control of the convention from the moment the report of the credentials committee was received, and took particular delight in defeating any proposition that the "reformers" might have to offer.

Madison for Delegate.
The supreme show of strength of both sides came in almost the last business of the four days' session, when the election of the delegate to the American Federation took place, and Madden defeated the combined factions of "reformers." Chicago teamsters and country delegates.

Very little business other than the election of officers was done Friday. Judge James Carter of Denver was accorded the floor to address the convention on the political and labor situation by Colorado, in which he asked for the moral and financial support of the labor unionists of the state in assisting the effort to defeat Gov. Peck.

state administration of Colorado for deportations of unionists and other actions in the last year were adopted and ordered sent to the Western Federation of Miners.

Congressional candidates in Illinois are to be catechized by the state federation before election on their position on the eight-hour bill before congress in case of their election.

A proposition to have all laws and the constitution of the state federation endorsed by a referendum of affiliated unions was sent to the incoming executive council.

Adam Menche, Kewanee; Mark Taylor, Danville, and James Madden, Springfield, were named as the legislative committees for the ensuing year. The next convention will be held in Danville the third Tuesday in October next year.

RUSSIANS RETREATING; THE JAPANESE ADVANCING

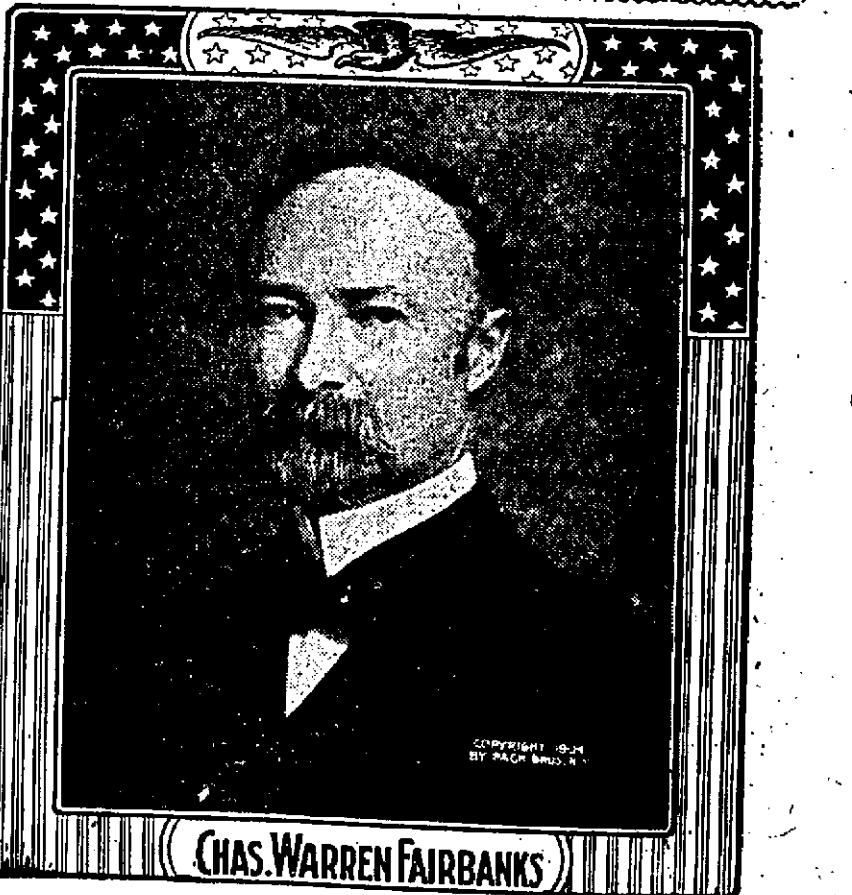

[Special by Scripps-Mellie.]

Tokyo, Oct. 15.—After the Japanese had partially occupied Shanbopu last evening the Russian main body fell back into the mountainous district east of the railway where they halted and are now facing the Japanese right which they were endeavoring to surround last evening. The Japanese have engaged the three Russian reserve divisions who, it is believed, were personally commanded by Kuropatkin himself. The fighting against these reserves was begun again this morning. The utmost importance is attached to the outcome of the fight.

The Russians about Pendul have fled to the northwest. There is a report in Rome that Kuropatkin has been severely wounded. The Italian Militaria has a dispatch from Mukden announcing the garrison has departed for the north for Harbin. Marshall Oyama reports that the fighting still continues this morning and that more Russian cannon have been captured by General Oku who is pursuing the Russian right wing.

Marshall Oyama adds: "Through the entire front of all our armies the enemy was driven back Friday to the right bank of the Shashan river, thus fundamentally destroying the enemy's plan of attack. The Russian corpses buried on Thursday by our men exceeded two thousand. Our trophies consist of a large number of rifles, ammunition, cars, etc., besides the guns already reported." From St. Petersburg comes a dispatch dated Mukden, 6:30 last night, and states General Kuropatkin has checked the Japanese advance of yesterday at Shashan river. Although the Russians have fallen back twenty miles there has been no rout. Kuropatkin is holding the line along the north bank of the Shashan extending from the west of the railway eastward to Benslaputze. It is understood Kuropatkin has designated Sakurao and then Gen. Bludner to succeed him in event of being disabled. Another dispatch from Tokyo says that fighting continues today but the Russians are retreating. Kuropatkin is evidently crushingly defeated. Gen. Oyama estimates the Russian casualties at 30,000.

CHAS. WARREN FAIRBANKS

There will be a grand republican rally in Milwaukee this evening at which Charles Fairbanks, republican nominee for vice-president, will address an audience. Senator Fairbanks has just completed a tour of the western and Pacific coast states, finishing with speeches in Illinois yesterday.

OLD FOGY GRINDS OUT HIS REMARKS

TALKS ON GENERAL CONDITIONS THAT EXIST.

AND FINDS FAULTS IN SEWER

Talks of Light for the Library Being Much Larger and Brighter.

To the Editor: Perhaps in all this hip, hip, hurrah period of politics the public may not have time to listen to my complaining. However, I have a few items of public wear that I would like to call attention to. First that sewer proposition. They are about to begin laying eight-inch pipes down Milwaukee street. I read with interest what City Engineer Kerch had to say to it and his reasons for laying a pipe of that size and then I talked with the gentleman who had been my informant before. "All bosh," was the rejoinder to my remark that I thought Mr. Kerch had explained matters. Now, I do not know anything about laying sewer pipes. It is a new thing to me, I must admit, but I was puzzled, am puzzled as to how the amount of sewage is to run off through an eight-inch pipe even if it does run down hill. However, I suppose the taxpayers know enough to look after their own interests and when the Milwaukee street sewer gets clogged up and becomes inadequate for the amount of work it is required to do, then I can say I told you so.

Lighting the Library.
I would like to suggest that the city library show more light at night. Take the post office and those electric lights outside the doors shine like stars during the evenings. Down at the library all is dark. The two lights on the outside of the building give but little light. The corner is dark enough anyway and there stands a great, magnificent building with no lights to help people up the steps. It would not cost much more to have large lights outside and a good light inside this building or on the corner below would greatly benefit that end of the park. Who ever has the matter in charge should be forced to stumble up the dark steps for several evenings and then the lights would be shining for months and years to come.

Insurance Rates.
Now, I am not complaining, but I would like to tell the readers of the Gazette a few facts. Did you know that many of our city buildings, private residences and stores are insured by companies doing business in small towns such as the Footville Insurance Company or the La Prairie Insurance company? Well, this is true. Why is it true? Because the rates of these companies on city property is lower than it is in the old time companies. How do I know it? Well, because I have some little insurance of my own and I placed it with one of these companies at a cheaper rate than I could with one of the old time companies.

Just a Word.
I would like to say just one word on politics. That is to deplore the present conditions of affairs. It is too bad that they exist, but since they do exist we must make the best we can of it. If the readers are republicans they can tell which are republicans and which are not on the ticket and they should vote accordingly. We know our senatorial assembly and county tickets are republican and we know that the men on the ticket headed by ex-Gov. Scofield are all republicans. This much we know. We know Senator Spooner is republican but as to others who have been mentioned I have my doubts. Have you?

WILLIAM PEARL; PIONEER SETTLER

Came to Rock County Fifty Years Ago—Highly Esteemed and Upright Resident.

Few men who come into a new country settle and remain in that territory for the remainder of their lives. The majority of them are landseekers, frontier men and prospectors. But early in the history of Rock county, about fifty years ago, there was a class of pioneers who beheld the fertile soil of the valley of Rock River and took up the lands which are now the finest and best farm lands of this section of the United States. Among these first settlers was William Pearl, Sr., who came to this country from New York state and for the first few seasons of his settlement tilled the soil near where is now Yost's park. Moving from there he went into Avon where he resided for three years and for the next twelve years, the only time when Mr. Pearl lived outside the county, he took up some land in Shawnee county of this state. In 1882 Mr. Pearl removed from his home outside this district into the town of Porter and then fourteen years ago he again moved onto the farm in the town of Janesville, where he resided until his death about two weeks ago. Mr. Pearl was a native of Connecticut, being born in that state in 1816. In early manhood he settled in New York state but the bright prospects of the then wild lands of Wisconsin attracted him to the verdant fields of Rock county. In social life Mr. Pearl was not prominent but as an honorable citizen he was respected more than he. Mr. Pearl passed away peacefully on the Sunday morning of the first week of this month at the ripe old age of eighty-eight, an honored, highly esteemed and greatly respected resident and pioneer of the county.

HUNG HIMSELF IN A TOBACCO SHED

Ole Peterson of Sumner, Allowed Business Troubles To Weigh on Mind, and Took His Life.

Ole Peterson, a well-known land grower living in the town of Sumner, north of Musseyville, hung himself with a rope tied to one of the strings of his tobacco shed. He had lately traded his farm for a larger one, incurring a liability in the exchange and this apparently weighed on his mind. Shortly after noon he went to the shed and after tying a small rope around his neck and attaching the other end to a stringer not much higher than his head, deliberately laid down and choked himself to death. Peterson was about sixty years of age and leaves a wife and one daughter. He frequently visited Janesville and local leaf dealers were well acquainted with him.

STOCK IN TEAM IS VERY BULLISH

University Men Feel Encouraged in the Outlook for Good Players.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 15.—The objective of the Wisconsin football coaches now is the first intercollegiate championship game of the season, with the University of Michigan, at Madison, a week from next Saturday. Coach Curtis believes the contest with the Wolverines under the tutelage of Yost is the hardest proposition on the Badger's schedule. While Minnesota just now appears to be stronger than Michigan, and Coach Stagg always has Chicago in championship form at the end of the season, Curtis is not yet worrying about the game with the Gophers Nov. 12, nor with the Midway team at Marshall field Thanksgiving day, taking it for granted that his Badgers can get over the Michigan game safely the two remaining games will be approached with confidence.

The significant events of the week's training at Madison have been the strike of some of the leading players on account of the "mixing" of the coaches in the election of members of the board of directors of the athletic association, the retreat of the coaches on that point and the wonderful return of spirit in the Badger team. A special election of directors will be held by the students ten days hence and the players who objected to the filling of vacancies on the board by the secret conference of the coaches will have their popularity tested at a general mass meeting.

A number of changes have been made in the arrangement of the team and this has resulted in the suggestion that the coaches are preparing an opportunity to punish the players who were prominent in the so-called strike. Findlay, the star left end, who was the first to quit, is not as secure in his position as Perry, who played fullback for the Badgers last year and who took Findlay's place at left end when the strike was in progress. In fact some sideline critics declare that Perry is the better player and deserves the place. Grogan, who has been playing right half back and who was one of the most disgruntled in the "recent unpleasantness," although he says he remained out of the game because of injuries, has been sent over to the second eleven and must win back the position. If at all, by showing superiority over Sanford. Even the reputed best player on the Wisconsin team, E. J. Vanderboom, who was considered to be without serious competition at left halfback, will have hard work to hold his place against Franzke. Sanford is equally strong as a candidate for full back and right halfback and should Grogan's weight and speed be deemed necessary on the first team, Sanford may be used at fullback in place of Clark. Other changes are the shifting of Kuehnstedt to the second eleven and the placing of George Jones at quarterback on the first team; and the switching of Bertke and Donovan in the positions of left guard and left tackle. Nothing save physical mishaps will, it seems, make any change in Captain Bush at right end; Kinney, right tackle; Remp, center; and Stromquist, right guard.

The suggestion that the coaches are desirous of punishing the strikers is probably without any warrant. The fact is the Wisconsin team up to four days ago was in a critical situation. The coaches were well nigh discouraged. Dr. H. H. Jacobs, a former Wisconsin guard, passed caustic criticism on the team as he observed it. Even Remp was heard to remark that the team "looks like a gang of high school kids." Something was very wrong and the fact that several changes have been made need have no causal relation with the recent brief strike. Results seem to abundantly justify the changes. There is great competition now for places. Every man on the second eleven plays as though he were determined to have a chance for a place on the first team. The spirit of students and players at this institution is changed and refreshing to the observer, and the Badger stock is on a "bullish" market.

BURIED TREES IMPEDED SOUTH MAIN STREET SEWER

Immense Trunks Used to Fill Ravine Near Putnam's Store Were Well Preserved.

In excavating for the South Main street sewer in the vicinity of C. S. Putnam's store the diggers came upon two immense trunks of trees which were evidently placed there many years ago during the work of filling the deep ravine once located in that part of the city. They were located about five feet below the surface and both were in a good state of preservation. On account of the expense only such portion was removed as was necessary in making way for the sewer pipe.

REAL EXPERIENCE IN JAPANESE WAR

MR. HIBBARD WRITES OF HIS TRIP TO ANTOKEN.

DESCRIBES SCENE ON VESSEL

Crowd of Japanese and Koreans—Wonderful Pan Picture Drawn of the Conditions.

All eyes and all ears are turned towards the far east and the great war between Japan and Russia. As has been stated before the Janesville people are particularly interested in this great struggle, owing to the fact that Carlisle Hibbard, the husband of a Janesville lady—Mrs. Susie Lowell Hibbard, is at the front and while not on the firing line is close to it with the Y. M. C. A. army tent. Those who went through the Spanish-American war remember these Y. M. C. A. tents that followed the regiments about and the older soldiers remember the work of the Christian brothers during the great Civil war. The Gazette is glad to be able to print a copy of the letter received from Mr. Hibbard yesterday morning which includes a vivid description of Mr. Hibbard's experience going to the front.

Ryugasaki, Sept. 7, 1904.
Still we are not in Antung. Monday morning we reached Chinampo and spent some time in looking around the town. More than ever we were struck with the contrast between the Japanese and the native city. Even if the Japanese do "skin" the Koreans occasionally and disturb their pride a bit, the benefits which they are bestowing are of incomparable value. The news of the capture of Liaoyang had just been received and the whole Japanese community was in full celebration.

When we came to transfer our baggage we found the main deck of the 230-ton steamer would not hold more so our disappointment in the baggage had to be left behind with the cook to guard it, while Mr. Ochilal and I decided to go on up the Yalu to Antoken. The third class of the steamer had overflowed and the deck was littered with humanity. On the top of the baggage and in all the interstices thereof Japanese and Korean men, women and children were swarmed. The first cabin was a single room 12x12, furnished with tatami (Japanese matting). Seven Japanese soldiers were in possession but we were assured that there was room for three or four more. Once inside we spread a blanket, ate our supper, of rolls and sardines and settled down for the night. Everyone was smoking and the low room was a picture in the dim light of a single oil lamp. Fortunately the weather was not hot, indeed the weather has been beyond criticism ever since we left Kobe.

In the morning early the steamer came to a stop in the open sea and the steward took a small boat and went on shore on some errand taking a couple of soldiers as guards. Junks came alongside and took off some passengers and a lot of baggage, evidently the property of Japanese working on the railroad. A Japanese bath tub was prominent among the civilizing influences going ashore. Later a small junk came alongside and the soldiers loaded in some thousands of Yen in nickels. Soon the sea roughened and we doubted if the steward could make the ship in his small boat but at length he appeared, the boat bounding along like a cork. Just before sunset we were under way. The sunset was one to be remembered. At the left was a long, hilly island and as the sun cut sharp into the water there quare sails of two Chinese junks stood in sharp relief against the glowing sky. The sea was a path of flame and overhead the wind-blown shreds of cloud shaded from red to yellow.

We reached Antoken after some delay but turned out of there, have come back to Chinampo.

NO GREAT GAMES CONTESTED TODAY

Some of the Lesser College Teams Will Have Hard Games—Big Elevens Practicing.

East and west today are being played between the colleges and universities in the football territory, games which as a rule are foregone conclusions though some will be close and some surprises are expected. At Beaver Dam this afternoon the high school team is playing Wayland Academy. Little is known as to what the result will be as Wayland has not played any strong teams as yet this season. Iowa is playing at Chicago with Chicago University and the score should be about thirty for Chicago. Beloit is playing with Northwestern at Northwestern and the defeat of the former is anticipated. The game between Michigan and Ohio State university is simply a question of size in score for the blue and the maize. At Milwaukee, Wisconsin should defeat Notre Dame by a score of thirty. Ames at Minnesota is an easy victory for the state institution. Indiana at Illinois will be close but the Illinois team should be victorious in the contest. Creighton and Nebraska are playing at Omaha and the game should go to the Nebraska team. Wabash and Purdue will be hotly contested but Purdue is the favorite. In the east some decisive games are scheduled for the greater elevens. Harvard at West Point should come off the victor with little trouble. The game at Syracuse between Syracuse and Yale should go to the latter team. Princeton at Annapolis is conceded to be a victory for the Princeton men. Brown at Pennsylvania should be a victory for the state university by a score of twenty-five. Bucknell at Cornell should result with a score in favor of the latter college. The game between Albright and Carlisle should be won by the Indians. At Columbia, Columbia should gain a victory from Amherst. Dartmouth is expected to go down to defeat before Williams at the home of the latter.

The door of a car containing tin cans consigned to P. Hohenadel, Jr., in this city in some way opened and corn receptacles were strewn from one end of the yards to the other.

Western lines have decided to make the Colorado common points all the year-round tourist points. Heretofore they have been only summer tourist points. The decision to try to induce people to consider Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo winter as well as summer possibilities was reached at a meeting of the executive committee of the Western Passenger association yesterday. If the plan is approved by all lines the rates during the summer will be about $47 for the round trip from Chicago. It is understood that if tourists go to Colorado in the winter efforts will be made to operate the cog railway up Pike's Peak. It is thought this could be done by constructing snow sheds.

is the Only Possible Way of Having An Effective Cure.

If you see a woman or a man with luxuriant glossy hair, you may be sure neither has dandruff to amount to anything in nearly every case where women and men have thin brittle hair, they owe it to dandruff. There are hundreds of preparations that "claim" to cure dandruff, but not one but Newbro's Herpicide tells you that dandruff is the result of a germ burrowing into the scalp, and that permanent cure of dandruff and its consequent falling and baldness, can only be had by killing the germ; and there is no other preparation that will destroy that germ but Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, and you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists and 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

TO WORLD'S FAIR VISITORS. Certain other Chicago-St. Louis lines have advertised freely in Chicago and elsewhere that they land their passengers at the World's Fair grounds. ## Just a Moment, Please!

Why not let The Royal Tailors of Chicago make your fall suit or overcoat? When delivery is made, there will also be delivered a direct guaranty covering the quality of goods, the style and fit of the garments and the workmanship.

And that guaranty is worth one hundred cents on the dollar to you. It means that you are to be satisfied with the garments when you get them—satisfied that they were made expressly for you, to your own measure—and it means that they will wear well, give you good service, and hold their shape as rightly-tailored garments should.

The cost of Royal tailoring is so low that you might almost think price was the first consideration. But it isn't. Value is first. Value-giving is at the basis of The Royal Tailors' success. The best for the money always—that is the Royal idea.

Customers of The Royal Tailors are invited to guess how many people will attend the World's Fair at St. Louis. They offer prizes consisting of ten Automobiles, to be given to the persons making the closest guesses. The cost of these Automobiles is $13,700. There are also eight cash prizes of $100 each, making the total value of the prizes $14,500. For every dollar you pay on an order for Royal tailoring you can make one guess; on a $15 suit you can make fifteen guesses, and on a $20 suit you can make twenty guesses, and so on—a guess for every dollar.

The Royal Tailors carry a million-dollar stock of woollens—something sure to please everybody; suits and overcoats for men and boys—ladies' man-tailored skirts and coats—all made strictly to measure at an actual proven cash saving of fully twenty-five per cent.

But the thing to do is to see the goods and get the prices. You can do that by calling on

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

It is an old saying that a square peg is a poor fit for a round hole, and yet a great deal of time and energy is wasted in trying to adjust conditions in life that are misfits.

The failures of life are largely due, not to dishonesty, but to vain efforts in attempting to adjust square pegs into round holes. There are thousands of men in business today who meet with indifferent success, because they are attempting a line of work for which they were never intended.

A man or woman to meet with any degree of success must first be in love with their work. It requires enthusiasm which can only result from adaptability and devotion to the work in hand.

The schools of the land are filled with faithful teachers, but only a limited knowledge of human nature, and the most casual observation is necessary to discover that teachers sometimes miss their calling.

They may be well equipped mentally and morally above reproach and yet destitute of the elements necessary to any degree of success in the school room.

The heart of a child must be won before the mind can be enlightened, or the brain cells invaded.

The teacher who possesses a warm loving heart, large enough to take in the entire school room, finds but little trouble in imparting knowledge. When the heart is captured the intellect and will are easily controlled, and results are never disappointing.

Forty years ago, or more, a young man was employed to teach a district school. The little temple of learning stood on a hill which offered fine inducements for coasting, and it was used to advantage during the long winter season.

The little school room with its old fashioned desks, which bore the marks of many a youngster's pocket knife, was crowded by half a hundred boys and girls of all ages, and when the new teacher, tall, gaunt and homely, stood before them one crisp November morning, the row of husky young men on the back seat winked him up and, with many a sly wink, decided that they could handle him as easily as they did his predecessor.

The school had the reputation of being a terror and the boys had acquired the disagreeable habit of running it themselves, if one of their number was to be punished they took his part, and when the coasting was good the school bell failed to be an annoyance.

The new teacher devoted the first day to getting acquainted. He discovered the rough corners and recognized the spirit of rebellion which brooded but little restrained, but he was resourceful, possessing a world of tact, plenty of good nature and was thoroughly in love with his work.

Beneath the rough exterior of the big boys on the back seat he detected a better nature, and so he decided to win them to himself, if patience and love could accomplish his purpose.

They responded unconsciously to the magic touch and the first few weeks of school was a revelation to both parents and scholars. The new teacher was homely, but popular.

One day in January, when the hill was a glare of ice, the noon hour was all too short and so half the school spent the afternoon on the hill.

The next morning the truants were prepared for a reprimand but instead the teacher said:

"I noticed this morning that the coasting was unusually fine, and so I'm going to give you all a half holiday this afternoon to enjoy it, and I want to be invited to join in the sport." That was all, but it settled the question of loyalty and won for the teacher the highest regard. He was a round peg in a round hole.

A young man was impressed with the notion that he had a call to preach and just before he was ready to take up active work he was invited to occupy a pulpit in a village church.

He got through with the preliminaries all right and announced his text, but his thoughts, which had not been committed to manuscript, fled like autumn leaves before the wind. He stammered for a moment in dire confusion and sat down.

A good old brother suggested that they have a word of prayer, and in his petition he thanked the Lord for the zeal and earnestness of the young preacher, and then suggested that he be fitted for the work before attempting to occupy the field.

There are older men in the ministry who never break down before an audience but whose only argument is words. There is something more than "a call" necessary to success even in the sacred office of the ministry and there are numerous square pegs in the calling that can never be made to fit round holes.

In the more ordinary walks of life the notion is quite common that an intelligent boy or girl can be taught to do anything that anyone else can. Anyone can learn to play a piano, but the difference between a piano player and a pianist is the difference between an artist and an amateur.

Anyone can stand behind the counter, but there is all the difference in the world between a clerk and a salesman.

Any man who has the capital can run a store but the measure of success marks the difference between the storekeeper and merchant.

The man who sells goods successfully in this progressive age, is the man who learns by observation that he must keep abreast of the times both in stock and methods.

He may be so opinionated and so full of conceit as to imagine that he knows it all and be content to run along in the same old ruts. If so he is a store keeper and not a merchant. A square peg trying to fill a round hole.

The legal and medical professions are not free from this class of misfits, and while the ability to look wise constitutes a liberal amount of capital in these professions the measure of ability is frequently only surface deep.

A case of malpractice is now before the local courts. The merits or demerits are immaterial, as compared with the fact that professional blunders are not easily excused.

A young lady from the northern part of the state was sent down to the school for blind recently. She had a little trouble with her eyes and consulted a local physician who told her that an operation was necessary and that it must be performed without delay.

He operated and put out both eyes in less than a week. Public indignation threatened, so he bought the girl a piano and persuaded her to enter the state school. That sort of a peg was certainly a misfit in the medical profession.

It is said that the goal of success is at the end of hard and persistent work. This is only half true. While hard work is necessary to success, the channel of adaptability is also necessary and the father or mother, the teacher or friend, who is wise enough to discover this channel, is the best friend that the boy or girl ever has.

Senator Whitehead's reception at Clinton last Thursday night and the close attention given to his address indicates that more than hypnotic influence will be necessary to turn the popular vote against him. Senator Whitehead is too well known in Rock county for the governor's attack to effect him, except in the way of adding to the senator's majority.

The primary law is a farce and delusion. If the voters of Wisconsin consult their own interests they will vote it down. Should it become a law it will curse the state for years to come.

The governor will find it a little difficult to stir up hatred against Senator Whitehead in his home county.

Populistic legislation drove the manufacturing industries out of Iowa 20 years ago. Wisconsin is threatened with a similar epidemic.

How can a man claim to be a republican who works against republican nominees?

There will be less stars in the firmament when the clouds roll by.

Every voter in the city should investigate the voting machine.

PRESS COMMENT

Madison Journal: Perhaps, someone will endow a "Hall of Notoriety" some day and then "Bob" will have his chance.

La Crosse Chronicle: La Follette is a past master at using a club in politics. He carries a "big stick" in his hand, wears a chip on his shoulder and "speaks softly" to nobody.

Chicago News: About the best thing that can be said for war, as the discussion now in progress indicates, is that sometimes it is a bad way of getting good results.

Superior Telegram: Over in Minnesota the candidates are coming out in favor of good roads, good weather, good health and fifty bushels of wheat to the acre.

Oshkosh Northwestern: The illustration of Governor La Follette using a megaphone is a very appropriate one. This is the manner in which he has always been accustomed to whisper.

Seranton Tribune: Herr Most, the anarchist, has decided that Chicago has the least law of any city in the United States, and will locate there. Chicago has had many hard knocks in the past, but this seems to be the limit.

Merrill Advocate: There's a funny situation in Sawyer county, where the office of sheriff is vacant because no one cares to undertake to arrest Dietz, the man behind the gun, who, it will be recalled, defended his alleged right to Thorsapple dam somewhere near Chilpewa Falls.

Kenosha Gazette: Since he was twenty-one years of age Robert M. La Follette has been a persistent candidate for public office. From the time he was old enough to qualify, he has drawn from the public treasury in the vicinity of $75,000 for his services to the "dear people." No wonder he loves them.

Superior Telegram: Chairman Connor has so far neglected to make demand on the national committee that it approve the able La Follette campaign for Mr. Grottophrist in the Third district. But it was probably an oversight due to the rush and hurry of the campaign.

Chicago Chronicle: Knowledge of men is of great importance in a president. If Mr. Parker entertains the idea that Mr. Harrison is a party leader of considerable power, he has been severely deceived. The mayor is the head of a mongrel aggregation in Chicago which supports him for mayor for what there is in it, but he has no influence with his followers on any matter of general or national politics.

Sheboygan Journal: The stalwart leaders have decided to stick to their belief and fight Gov. La Follette to the end. Whether they can defeat him or not is of course a matter of speculation. If the stalwarts can hold even one-half of their following together until election day it looks as though there would be a new ruler at Madison.

Seranton Tribune: Mollinex has appeared in the arena again in the act of presenting a Paottracen oin act of presenting Nan Patterson, who is soon to be tried for murder, with a rabbit's foot that is supposed to have saved him from the death chair. If Mollinex persists in claiming attention, a good many persons will probably regret that the rabbit's foot failed to enter his possession. Mollinex belongs to a class of citizens that should be forgotten as soon as possible.

FIRST LECTURE ON

THE ART OF ROME

Was Delivered Before Janesville Art League Yesterday—To Hold a Loan Exhibition.

Prof. Theodore Lyman Wright of Beloit College gave the first of his series of lectures on "Rome in Art and History" before the Janesville Art League at the high school building yesterday afternoon. His subject was "The Approach to Rome" and he devoted himself to the geography of Italy as an introduction to its art. He first fared forth on the Mediterranean with his hearers, passing between the dread rocks of Scylla and Charibdis which guard the shores of Sicily and the mainland, passed the island of Vulcano and numerous other storied islets, and entered the bay of Naples.

Approaching Rome by the commercial and military entrance of Brundisium he found the same exuberant water, "the wretched boatmen soaked in such state wine," and the extortionate innkeepers, whom Horace saw and wrote of nineteen centuries ago. The third approach was made by way of the "roof of Italy"—through the passes of the Alps and northern Apennines. Much time was spent with the good old monks of St. Bernard and the lecturer described a visit to their kitchen and his personal experience drying wet socks with holy candles placed on either side of a sacred carving in his chilly room. On all of these journeys which the speaker had actually made himself the scenery was carefully described in preparation for the evolution and development of Italy's art, which is to follow. The next lecture will be given on December 9. The Janesville Art League will have a loan exhibition of art and crafts in the art gallery of the public library the week of November 20. The exhibition will consist of the work of the league members and art objects owned in the city, and will include paintings, sculpture, metals, embroideries, textiles, wood carvings, pyrography, decorations, ceramics, and photographs. Those owning works of art are invited to loan them for this exhibition. Paintings of local artists, however, are not desired. An admission fee will be charged and the proceeds will be used to procure additions to the permanent art exhibition which will be opened to the public at the close of the loan exhibition. The members of the exhibition committee are: Mrs. A. E. Tanberg, chairman, Mrs. Emmett McGowan, Mrs. Fred A. Capelle, and Mrs. Charles Tarrant.

LINK AND PIN.

At the meeting of the Railroad Telegraphers in Harvard last evening Guy Bingham of this city was the only operator from the lines north of Harvard present. William Voss, day operator at Barrington, was unanimously chosen by the Janesville line members as candidate for local chairman. Another meeting will be held tonight at Kenosha giving the Milwaukee line members a chance to put up their candidate, after which General Chairman Troy will appoint the more capable man. The Janesville line was represented by about twenty-five members which was considerably better than at the last meeting which was held here and was attended by six or seven from the Wisconsin division, although General Chairman Troy and General Secretary and Treasurer Kempkes made a special effort to get the members lined up. Another meeting will be held at Harvard Nov. 19, that city being the most centrally located.

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,
Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

Copyright, 1903, by G. W. Dillingham Company

"How will you set to work to get that confession?"

George wrinkled his brows. "There is only one way, sir. I must find out who killed Mrs. Jersey. If you can help me—"

"I can't. I know no more who murdered the woman than you do."

"Yet you were in the house on that night."

Derrington grew wrathful. "Don't talk rubbish, sir. If I was I should not mind admitting the fact. As it is—"

He broke off, gnawing his lip and avoiding Derrington's eyes.

"That the old man knew something vital to the case Brendon was certain. That he would never confess what it was George felt perfectly sure. He abandoned the point, as he did not wish to make Lord Derrington incriminate himself, and he might do so."

Brendon was satisfied that he had seen him in the house on the night when Mrs. Jersey was murdered.

"There is no more to be said," he remarked, taking up his hat.

"No. Except that I'll give you a fair chance of finding the church. Bawdsey shall watch you no more."

"Thank you. And Mrs. Ward?"

"She shall be made to hold her tongue."

George bowed. "I am obliged to you, sir. I now see that you intend to fight fairly. Good day." And he departed.

Derrington stood where he was in deep thought. Suddenly he struck a mighty blow on the desk. "By heaven, he's a man after my own heart!" said the old scamp. "He shall be my heir; he shall marry that girl, but to exercise his wills he shall fight every inch of the way to attain his ambition."

CHAPTER XIII.

DOROTHY was by no means of a jealous disposition. Moreover, her love for George was so deep and pure that she trusted him entirely. Nevertheless, having learned from the few words dropped by Vane that Brendon knew Lola, she felt desirous of seeing the woman. That Lola was her rival she never for one moment believed, but the fact remained that Brendon's name was coupled with that of the dancer, and this in itself was an annoyance.

There was no need for her to ask George why such a report should prevail, for she knew that he would be able to explain in a satisfactory manner, and, trusting him already, it was useless to demand details. Her feelings would remain the same after the telling of his story as they were now; therefore she avoided the disagreeable subject. Nevertheless, she was woman enough to desire a sight of Lola, and induced her mother to take her to the music hall. Mrs. Ward was very pleased to do so, but she was too clever to let that she guessed Dorothy's reason for making this request.

"Certainly, my dear," she said briskly. "I am very glad that you are coming out of your shell. Men hate a woman who can't talk of everything, and nothing is talked about but Lola."

"I must educate myself to please men, then," said Dorothy dryly. "So I may as well begin with the dancer. On what night can we go?"

"Oh, Friday will do. Mr. Vane has invited us to dine at the Cecil, so I'll ask him to get us a box."

Dorothy would rather have gone with any one than with Mr. Vane. However, there was nothing for it but to accept, since she had brought it on herself. With a smile which encouraged her mother to think she would behave sensibly toward Vane, she agreed to the proposed dinner party.

"You won't have him arrested?"

"No. And what is more, I won't have him spoken about in connection with that crime."

Mrs. Ward forgot her desire to conciliate Derrington, forgot her desire to marry Vane to Dorothy, forgot everything in a sudden access of rage. "I shall do what I choose!" she cried.

"No," said Derrington quietly and looking her full in the face. "You will obey me."

"Obey you, Lord Derrington?"

"Yes. I have tried to conduct this interview, quietly, Mrs. Ward, and to hint that your wiser plan is to be silent, but—"

"I don't want hints. I wish for plain speaking," raged the little woman. "How dare you address me like this?"

The old gentleman leaned forward suddenly and whispered a short sentence in her ear. Mrs. Ward's face turned purple with rage, and she tottered to a chair, closing her eyes as she fell into it. Derrington surveyed her with a pitiless expression.

"You will be silent about Brendon?" he asked.

"Yes," moaned Mrs. Ward. "I will say nothing."

At the meeting at the Cecil Mrs. Ward was herself again. She had quite got over the fright given to her by Derrington, and when she saw him later treated him in her old manner. On his side the old gentleman made no difference, but he wondered how she was carrying herself so boldly. At once it occurred to his suspicious mind that there was some reason for this defiant behavior, and he determined to watch her. For this purpose he joined the party.

"It is the first time I have been to a music hall for years," he explained to Dorothy. "But Walter has been and companionship, and Mrs. Ward wrote a note at once.

"I hope when she sees Lola, and hears the stories about that Brendon man, that she may refuse to have anything more to do with him," was Mrs. Ward's remark as she scribbled her note.

"I don't want to get the Brendon man into trouble by having him arrested for murder. And I don't think Derrington would let me if I did wish it."

Her last speech was prophetic, for the next day Lord Derrington paid a visit to Curzon street and had a short interview with Mrs. Ward, the gist of which was that she must hold her tongue.

"Brendon called to see me the other day," explained Derrington, looking grim, "and he showed me plainly that he had nothing to do with the matter."

"But how about the holly berry?"

"That is easily explained," replied Derrington, who, anticipating the question, had prepared an answer. "Brendon was one of the first to see the body, and in touching it the berry fell from the sprig. Afterward—mind you, afterward—Mr. Train found the berry and, not knowing that Brendon had seen the body that morning, thought he had been in the room on the previous night."

"I'm sure he was," insisted Mrs. Ward.

"You are sure of nothing of the sort. Brendon could not have got downstairs without the connivance of Train, and you heard what Train said."

Then he asked after a pause, "Why did you tell Dorothy to give the sprig of holly to Brendon on that night?"

Mrs. Ward shrugged her shoulders and looked down nervously. "Oh, it was the merest kindness on my part," she said, trying to speak quietly. Derrington contradicted her at once.

"It was nothing of the sort," he declared, with roughness. "You wished him to have the yellow holly in his coat when he saw Mrs. Jersey so that the woman might betray herself."

"I knew nothing about Mrs. Jersey at the time."

"Oh, but you did! With regard to the holly, you knew from me how it was used in connection with the death of my son at San Remo, and what I did not tell you I learned from other people. But how did you know about Mrs. Jersey?"

"That's my business," cried Mrs. Ward, becoming imprudent. "You are right about the holly. I sent to Devonshire expressly to get some. It was my intention to inclose a sprig in a letter to Mrs. Jersey so as to frighten her."

"What good would that have done?"

"My business again," snapped Mrs. Ward, becoming bolder. "I had my reason for wishing to recall your son's death to her mind, and I knew that the yellow holly would do so most successfully. When Dorothy came from the park and told me that Brendon was to stop with his friend at Mrs. Jersey's boarding house, I thought that it would be better to let George wear the sprig. And I managed it in such a way that neither Dorothy nor George guessed how I planned the business. And I succeeded. Mrs. Jersey saw the sprig and nearly fainted. I knew then that—"

Here she stopped.

Derrington saw that it was useless to question her further. She would only lie and had been telling lies for all he knew.

"I shall ask you nothing more," he said, rising to take his leave. "You have some reason for all this intrigue, I have no doubt. What your intentions are matters little to me. I came merely to warn you that Brendon is to be left alone."

"You won't have him arrested?"

"No. And what is more, I won't have him spoken about in connection with that crime."

Mrs. Ward forgot her desire to conciliate Derrington, forgot her desire to marry Vane to Dorothy, forgot everything in a sudden access of rage. "I shall do what I choose!" she cried.

"No," said Derrington quietly and looking her full in the face. "You will obey me."

"Obey you, Lord Derrington?"

"Yes. I have tried to conduct this interview, quietly, Mrs. Ward, and to hint that your wiser plan is to be silent, but—"

"I don't want hints. I wish for plain speaking," raged the little woman. "How dare you address me like this?"

The old gentleman leaned forward suddenly and whispered a short sentence in her ear. Mrs. Ward's face turned purple with rage, and she tottered to a chair, closing her eyes as she fell into it. Derrington surveyed her with a pitiless expression.

"You will be silent about Brendon?" he asked.

"Yes," moaned Mrs. Ward. "I will say nothing."

talking so much about this new dancer that I felt I must see her."

"Why did you not dine with us at the Cecil?" asked Dorothy.

"I always prefer to dine at home, my dear young lady. Besides, it does not do for an old man to waltz his gray beard uninvited among the young."

Meanwhile Mrs. Ward was chatting amicably to Vane and to a rapid war office clerk who had formed a fourth at the Cecil dinner party. The box was large and easily held the party. Mrs. Ward had a position directly in front, where she could see and be seen, but Dorothy kept herself behind the curtains. She could see the stage excellently, but did not wish to be recognized by any chance acquaintance.

In an opposite box sat a red haired man in immaculate evening dress. Derrington recognized him as Bawdsey, but did not think it necessary to show his recognition. He sat at the back of the box between Vane and the war office clerk and kept a watchful eye on Mrs. Ward.

That little woman sparkled like a diamond. She criticized the house, admired the decorations and applauded the comic songs. It might have been that this indifferent attitude was one of defiance, as she must have known that Derrington was watching her. But she acted her part consummately, and he could not help admiring her coolness. "What an admirable actress," thought the old lord, "and what a dangerous woman!"

The ballet came at the end of the first part of the programme. When the curtain rose Dorothy was so anxious to behold Lola that she leaned forward so as to show her face to the whole house. Bawdsey saw her and put his glass to his eye. He smiled slightly, and Derrington wondered why he did so. But at that moment, and while the stage was filling with dancers, he arose to receive some newcomers. These were none other than Miss Bull and Margery, for whom Bawdsey had procured the box. The little old maid was whiter than ever and wore her usual gray dress. Margery was smartly gowned in green, and with her light hair and stupid red face looked anything but beautiful. She placed herself in the best position, being evidently directed to do so by Miss Bull, for that lady preferred the shade. At all events, she secluded herself behind a curtain and kept her beady black eyes persistently on the stage. On seeing that the two were comfortable, Bawdsey disappeared and did not return till the end of the ballet. Derrington saw all this, but no one else in Mrs. Ward's box took any notice. And why should they? Bawdsey and his party were quite unknown to them.

Dorothy could not say that Lola was handsome, but she had about her a wild grace which was very fascinating. When dancing she seemed to think of nothing but the revels in which she was engaged. She never cast a look at the house, and Dorothy noticed this. She was therefore somewhat surprised when, during the second scene, she saw Lola deliberately look in the direction of the box and stare at her piercingly for quite a moment or two. Rather confused by this sudden regard, the girl drew back. Lola noticed her no more, but continued to dance.

"Let us go now," said Dorothy, when the wild dance of Lola was at an end. "I wish I had not come."

She was interrupted by an ejaculation from her mother. Mrs. Ward was standing up, but her eyes were fixed on Miss Bull. The little old maid, as though feeling the influence of that glance, slowly looked in Mrs. Ward's direction. The eyes of the two women met. From those of Miss Bull flashed a look of hate, and she withdrew behind the curtain of the box. Mrs. Ward was white and shivering. Clutching Vane's arm she requested to be taken to her carriage. "It's too much for me," she said, alluding to the ballet.

Derrington stood on the pavement when the brougham rolled away bearing the mother and daughter, both silent, both pale. He was alone, as Vane and the war office clerk were back again in the hall. "Humph!" said Derrington, his eyes fixed on the retreating carriage. "So you know that little woman who called to see me about the lease. I wonder how that comes about. Miss Bull knew Mrs. Jersey, and you, Mrs. Ward, said that yellow holly. I wonder—"

The old man stopped. He could not quite understand what Mrs. Ward was doing, but he repeated his former observation. "A dangerous woman," said he. "I shall speak to Bawdsey about her. And, making up his mind to this, he went in search of the detective."

All that night Dorothy was haunted by strange dreams, in which the figure of Lola played a prominent part. Usually calm and self-possessed, Dorothy slept like a child, but the fierce music, the mad dancing, the knowledge that George knew this woman, caused her to sleep brokenly. She was up early, and after a breakfast that was a mere farce she took her way to the park. It was her usual custom to walk in a lonely part about 8 o'clock in the morning, but on this occasion she was at her usual spot by half past 7. This was a seat under a spreading tree in the center of a wide lawn. Few people came there at so early an hour, and Dorothy often read for an hour before returning home. In a mechanical manner she took a book out of her pocket and tried to read. But it was impossible. Before her inner vision passed the wild, flushed face of Lola Vane, and Dorothy could not drive it away. While endeavoring to do so some one came to sit on the seat. Dorothy, rather surprised, looked up. She saw Lola staring at her intently.

The dancer looked pale and worn. About her there was none of the influence of the previous night. As the morning was cold, she wore a sea-shell coat and toque, with a scarf of red silk twisted round her throat. This touch of color was all that was about her likely to suggest her foreign origin. With her pale face and piteous mouth and appealing eyes she looked like a broken hearted woman.

Letter to Mr. J. F. Sweeney, Janesville, Wis.

Dear Sir: "It costs as much to put on poor paint as good"—a common saying and true—it costs more to put on poor paint; more gallons.

Poor paint is paint and barytes or paint and sand or paint and lime or paint and chalk or paint and benzine or paint and water; these are the usual cheats; there are others.

It takes more gallons of paint and a cheat than of honest paint; and the cost of the labor of painting is so much a gallon; one gallon costs as much as another, for labor.

This is the way to reckon your costs for this year; but how about next year? Paint Devoe, and next year costs nothing; year after year the same; the same for several years. Paint anything else, and your costs recur according to what you paint with. Some of the mixtures wear one year; some two; some three. It costs twice, three times, four times, five times, as much to paint with a cheat as to paint with Devoe.

Yours truly, F. W. DEVOE & CO., New York and Chicago. P. S.—J. P. Baker sells our paint.

Galvanic Soap

DOES THE WORK

Galvanic Soap is all soap—pure soap and white. Contains no "filler" and goes farther than any other soap because of its purity and scientific construction. It removes the dirt without rubbing and without injury to the clothes or the hands.

Test: Dampen a dirty handkerchief and rub it over your face. The dirt will be in the water around the handkerchief and the handkerchief will come clean without resort to the washboard.

Motherhood

MOTHERHOOD is the reward nature bestows upon healthy womanhood. Women whose vitality has been sapped by disease cannot safely give birth to children. In pregnancy and in childbirth weakness of the mother is revealed in the pain and agony she suffers.

This great medicine drives out every vestige of inflammation and weakness, and gives tone and strength to the delicate organs which nurture the child. The pains of pregnancy are banished by Wine of Cardui, and miscarriages, which blast so many fond mother's hopes, are prevented. Flooding, which so often occurs after childbirth, is corrected when Wine of Cardui is used during pregnancy.

Wine of Cardui babies are healthy babies, because, during the months of pregnancy, the mother is able to give them necessary vitality and strength.

With these facts presented to American women no expectant mother could be satisfied without the reinforcement that Wine of Cardui will give her. Every mother should be able to treat herself in her home with this valuable medicine.

Wine of Cardui can be secured from any druggist at $1.00 a bottle.

Polycarp, N. C., Jan. 11, 1902.

I am the mother of seven children and while in pregnancy with the first six suffered untold misery until they were born. One month before the seventh was born I began to take a bottle of Wine of Cardui, which gave me relief after taking three doses. I used the remainder of the bottle until the birth of the child, and was stronger in three days after the birth than I was in a month after the birth of either of the first six. I am 21 years old.

MRS. V. ELIZABETH STAFFORD.

PEOPLE WE KNOW.

They Are Janesville People, and What They Say Is of Local Interest.

When an incident like the following occurs right here at home, it is hard to carry weight with our readers so the many strange occurrences go the rounds of the press; are published as facts, and become skepticism. On one subject skepticism is rapidly disappearing. This is due to the actual experience of our citizens, and their public utterances regarding them. The doubter must doubt no more in the face of such evidence as this. The public statement of a reputable citizen living right here at home, one whom you can see every day, leaves no ground for the skeptic to stand on.

Mrs. S. L. Belden of 64 S. River street says: "During two or three years I suffered most of the time with a terrible dragging down pain in my back just over the kidneys. It was very trying when I was at work and it did a lot of harm to my health. I had attacks of headache which seemed like congestion in the top and back of my head. When I read about Doan's Kidney Pills I did not have any too much confidence in them but my daughter got a box at the People's Drug Co.'s store and persuaded me to use them. They took right hold and made a wonderful change in my condition. I hardly realized how bad I was until Doan's Kidney Pills brought me relief from the attacks."

HUSBAND AND WIFE DIE TESTING FIRE ESCAPE

Edge of Stone Window Sill Cuts Through Rope, Precipitating the Couple to the Sidewalk.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 15.—In a test of a fire escape above a large crowd a woman and man were killed by a fall from the third story of the Commercial club to the stone sidewalk in Minnesota street. The man was P. M. Scannon, the inventor of the fire escape he was testing. The woman who fell with him to her death was his wife.

Scannon had made several tests of his device in his home city of Minneapolis and then had come to St. Paul, where he interested members of the Commercial club in the invention.

Going to the eighth floor of the Germania Life building, in which the Commercial club has its headquarters, Scannon attached his slender rope to a window sill and sprang out, descending leisurely toward the ground by means of his invention.

Previously Scannon had stationed his wife at a third story window of the Commercial club's rooms with instructions to join him on the fire escape when he got low enough for her to do so. Mrs. Scannon was waiting and when her husband came down she seized the slender rope and sprang out into space.

Scannon had not taken into account the stone sill of the window from which he started. This, however, had acted like a saw on the thin rope and when Mrs. Scannon's weight was added to that of her husband the cord snapped at the corner of the sill and both persons on the lower end fell headlong to the stone below.

Mrs. Scannon's neck was broken and she died a short time after her fall. Scannon died at a hospital several hours after his fall.

The cost of the road will be about $50,000.

Several hundred shots were fired and the bandits forced the guests of the Grace hotel, near by, to keep inside the building on penalty of being shot. The bank safe was wrecked. An alarm was given before the inside steel chest could be blown and, although there were many thousands of dollars in the bank, not a cent was secured.

ALLEGED MURDERER DEFIES AUTHORITIES

Fugitive Declares That the Officers Will Never Succeed in Capturing Him While He Is Alive.

St. Joseph, Mich., Oct. 15.—"I will fight to the last, and my last drop of blood will shed before the officers capture me. This is a life and death struggle and nothing would better satisfy me than to hold at bay and kill some of the officers of the law."

Such was the declaration by Edward Donahue, the alleged murderer of A. M. Northrop of Benton Harbor, made before he sought refuge in the wooded district in the vicinity of Grand Junction after he left the home of a relative in Kalamazoo, where he had been harbored for several hours.

It is believed Donahue has made good his escape from the woods by passing through a swamp and entered Thunder Knob district, where he is now hidden in the underbrush. Once stationed in this district it is thought that Donahue, who is known to be heavily armed, can never be taken alive by posse of officers still engaged in the search. His hiding place is protected by a heavy growth of underbrush, deep ravines and impassable lowlands.

Sheriff Collins, who has declared that Donahue must be taken dead or alive, has instructed the authorities not to engage the murderer in the wilderness, but remain on duty until he is compelled to vacate the lowlands owing to starvation, which will result in his capture alive.

SQUATTERS THREATEN FIGHT

Settlers in Indiana Say They Will Resist the State With Arms.

La Porte, Ind., Oct. 15.—State Auditor Sherrick has made the announcement that he will sell the meandered lands of the state in the Kankakee region at public auction on Oct. 22. These lands are now in the possession of squatters, who are determined to resist at the point of arms, if necessary, any attempt to forcibly eject them from the land which they have occupied for a number of years. The determined action on the part of the squatters, it is feared, will lead to serious consequences. There are thousands of acres of meandered land and the state claims the right under special legislative enactment to sell the land and evict the squatters. The question as to rights will be taken into the courts and in the meantime the squatters will marshal their forces to fight a bloody battle if need be to prevent eviction.

FURS...It Pays to Buy Early.

Our showing of Furs is at its best. Reliable Furs are the only kind to buy. Few people are really judges of furs, and there is probably more deception in furs than in most any other line. One must rely to a large extent on the honor of a merchant. Much honor—good furs. Little honor—buyer takes a risk. We are always ready to adjust any reasonable claim should any of our furs not prove up after being fairly treated.

NEARSEAL JACKETS constantly grow in popular favor. Good ones will never be common as they are worth from $45 to $75. Ours are the finest garments we have ever put out and it is easy to see that they outshine the usual run of garments called nearseal. Nearseal is a much abused word, it being tacked on to cheap electric seal garments. Women who see the Nearseal Jackets and Capes that this store shows will not forget them. We have them with rich, fancy silk linings, the same as one sees in genuine seal garments.
